THE CHANGING WOMAN

GRADATIM

BELMONT, N.C.

THE CHANGING WOMAN

In the Roaring 20's females were either "good ladies" or "bad women"; either angels or vamps.

The woman in school spent her hours in serious study of the liberal arts, while married women found their careers in the home and family.

The 50's caught a glimpse of the swan hidden inside the ugly duckling of a bobby-soxer. If she went to the "libe," it was to meet a guy who would take her to the next sock hop.

Careers were easy to choose; if Mary Lou was a cute dish, she might even make it in the business world — as a telephone operator.

SISTERS OF MERCY
BELMONT, NORTH CAROLINA

The drugstore hang-out and letter sweaters of the 50's have given way to new vistas for women in the 70's.

Independence is most important for the freer women of today: not only her clothing, but her interests are more uniquely her own.

And so today, women are coming into their own at last. This book is a kaleidoscope of women as they are at Sacred Heart College.

- F. Playing washerwoman is T. Shaughnessy.

SNCAE HELPS CHILDREN

The Orientation Committee worked to make incoming students feel at home under the guidance of chairman Kathy Pierse.

According to president Peggy Stuart, the SNCAE "allows student teachers to be prepared before going out to teach." The club sponsored a field day for a group of children at Spencers' Mountain, in addition to other social events.

Tricia Shaughnessy, president of the College Union, faced problems with a lack of student interest, but was able to regroup the organization to provide activities in many areas.

- A. Psychology Club with president C. Giovenco.
- B. Student Recruiting Committee is looking forward under the leadership of president M. Golembie-ski.

- E. Contemplating the psychology of Jung is E. Tracy.
- F. Campus Ministry members set out on field trip.

SRC DRAWS STUDENTS

The Student Recruiting Club was instrumental in sponsoring several College Weekends for prospective students. Larri Williams said, "We were active because we have at least two meetings a month to discuss the weekends."

Celia Giovenco cited a lack of members as the cause of the relative inactivity of the Psych Club. She pointed out that they were responsible for getting several speakers.

The Campus Ministry at SHC arranged music and readings for student Masses as well as doing charitable work.

ADMINISTRATION

Faculty and administrators were polled at random for their answers to a number of questions. Some answers are printed below:

What is your opinion of SHC going co-ed? Where would men be housed?

John Heiberger, Jr: I think the college should. It won't make a drastic change in the institution.

Dr. Anthony Camele: Eventually it will be a very good idea. I think we will have to have some extensive curriculum changes. Housing could be anywhere we have room. Away from the women--Kent, perhaps.

Sr. Christine: I have no objections whatsoever. My concern is that there will be two co-ed colleges competing for students. Would we have enough to offer male students in the way of extra-curricular activities?

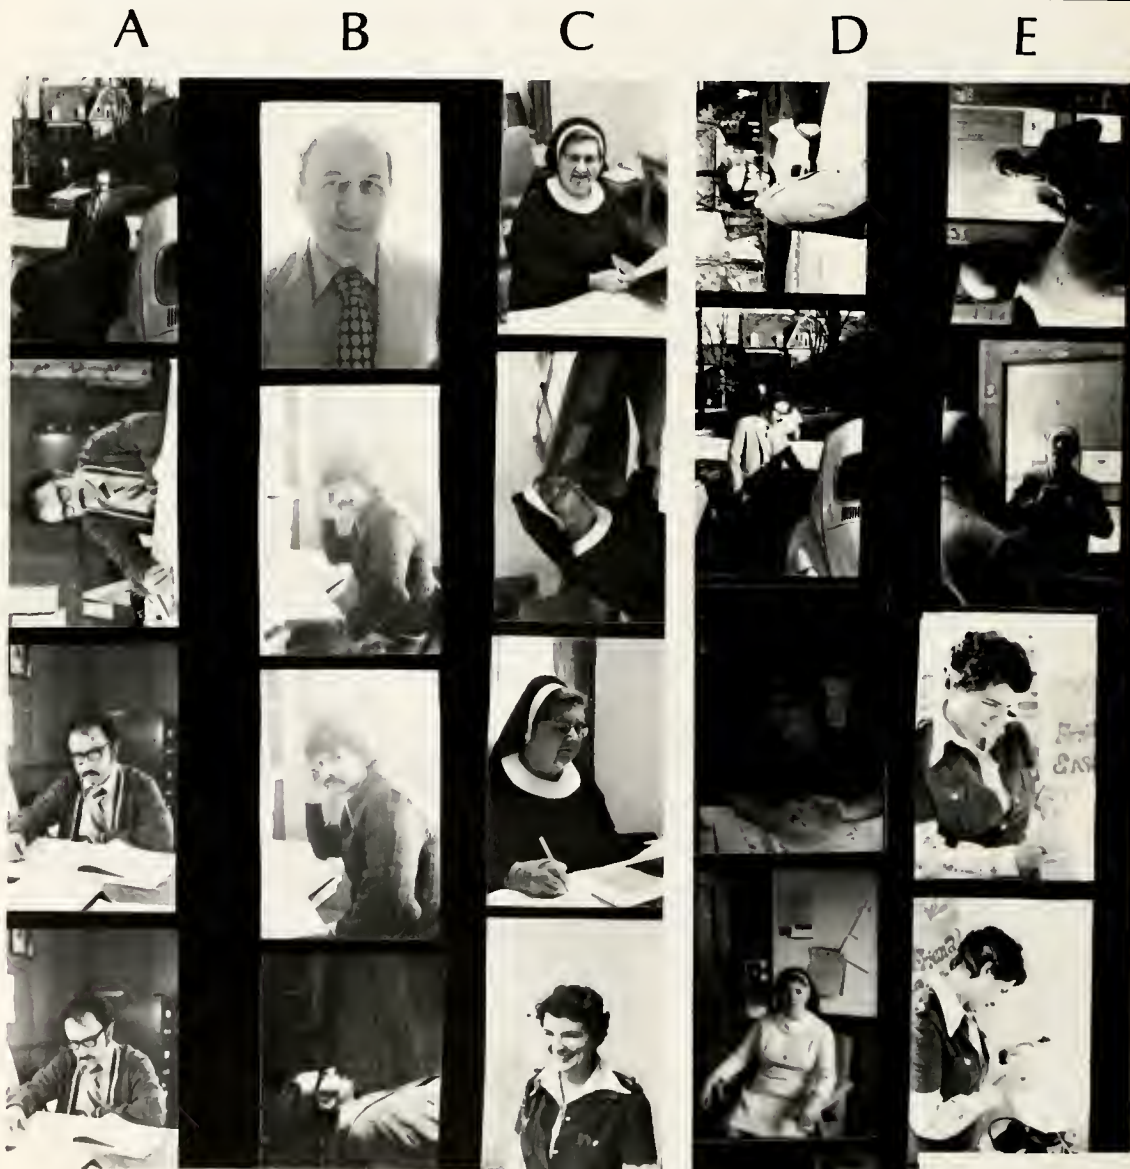

Sandra McAnich: I can see good points and bad points, but now that the Abbey has gone co-ed, I'm not sure we should. I don't see how two Catholic colleges can exist a mile apart.

Dr. Edward McGee: I'm in favor of it. It might be nice to have men on campus; I realize that causes all kinds of problems.

Dr. Warren Groff: An unequivocal yes for full resident and nonresident co-ed status for several reasons: A shortage of male images in early childhood and elementary education, and married couples could be admitted to SHC and be housed in Kent. Also a program for correctional officers will bring men to the college, as well as women resident and nonresident students.

William Craig: It should have good justification. It's my opinion that the students are against it, but I feel they should be polled for their opinions and they should be considered.

Allan Axelrad: Not a very favorable attitude toward co-education. I feel there is a reason for women's colleges --look at Who's Who--women in women's colleges always come out on top. Also at SHC, women don't really have to worry about their appearance all the time.

Roberta Gladowski: I think it would destroy what SHC has to offer young women. Women need opportunities for leadership, which I think they get at SHC, that are not available at co-ed colleges.

Elaine Sipe: SHC should not jump on a co-ed bandwagon. I don't think it is necessary for us to go co-ed to survive. We could lose much of the uniqueness and appeal a woman's college has.

Sr. Annette, Ms. Ortman, Ms. Moran, Ms. Gladowski, Ms. Sipe talk about the opening of the Art department kiln. H. Dr. Edward McGee races down the court during SHC - Davidson basketball game.

G

What do you feel is the biggest problem facing SHC? How can it be ended?

William Craig: Biggest problems are enrollment and finance. The steps of increased recruitment and financial solicitation have already been started.

Allan Axelrad: Small enrollment. It is in the process of being solved by an energetic college administration.

Roberta Gladowski: Lack of students. We should recruit locally, and start a program of personal contact and individual recruitment.

Elaine Sipe: Money, Lack of students. We should build appealing programs, and sell our uniqueness, emphasizing our story, and what we have to offer.

Dr. Anthony Camele: Money. We must increase student enrollment and fund raising.

Sr. Christine: Money and lack of students. We need a full-scale recruitment effort on everyone's part and for someone to leave us a million dollars.

Sandra McAnich: The biggest problem facing SHC is making a decision about what SHC is, and getting the kind of students who want to go to our kind of college. There has to be some kind of second sight about what education will be doing in the next ten years for us to make a decision about SHC.

Dr. Edward McGee: Enrollment. I really don't know. We need to employ a variety of methods: broader advertising, developing unique and unusual programs which will attract students.

John Heiberger, Jr: Our biggest problem is letting the general public know what we are about--that we exist. Without public interest, we will have difficulties recruiting students and raising funds. If we are successful in these areas, then internal problems (course offerings, recreational needs) will take care of themselves.

Dr. Warren Groff: Identity. Should SHC try to deal with the problems of the area in which it is located: low educational levels, crime, mental disturbances? To what social "ends" shall the college be dedicated?

What do you see as the best asset of Sacred Heart?

Sr. Christine: A faculty that is totally united, more so than they have ever been, and the nicest group of students in a long time.

Sandra McAnich: A committed faculty and an impressive physical plant.

What do you see as the best asset of Sacred Heart?

Dr. Warren Groff: Its human resources and the commitment to survive. These resources include the Sisters of Mercy, Boards of Trustees and Visitors, alumni, faculty and students. They are committed to the notion that SHC can not only survive, but prosper.

John Heiberger Jr: The people in the institution. Of all the colleges I've been at, I've never seen a more helpful faculty and administration. I also see the overall friendliness of the students and faculty as a real asset.

Dr. Anthony Camele: The faculty - student ratio, and the make-up of the faculty and student body. Other assets are the support of the Motherhouse, the physical facilities, and the smallness of the college.

Dr. Edward McGee: The size makes it possible for faculty and students to know one another, which is distinctive, and I think quite healthy.

William Craig: I see both the student body and faculty as assets to Sacred Heart. The personalities involved on campus, as well as an attractive campus, are also important, I think.

Allan Axelrad: Assets are small classes, the availability of teachers, and good relationships between students and teachers. I think teachers are understanding of the problems of the students.

Roberta Gladowski: The intimate contact between faculty and students is an important asset of Sacred Heart.

Elaine Sipe: The personalized and individualized approach in education are definitely assets of SHC. The one-to-one contact between faculty and students is an added bonus.

What do you personally like most about Sacred Heart College?

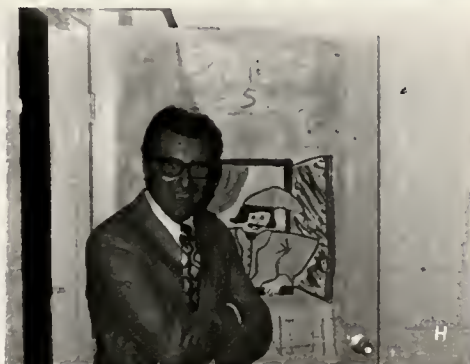

John Heiberger Jr: The assets of SHC are the things I like best: that is the people and the friendliness of the students and faculty.

Dr. Anthony Camele: I like basicly being able to do things the way I want to do them.

Sandra McAnich: I like the pleasant working conditions, lots of freedom in my work and the open-mindedness of the college community.

Dr. Edward McGee: My colleagues here, who are talented, alert, and congenial people.

What do you personally like most about Sacred Heart?

Dr. Warren Groff: The potential for blending together an academic orientation and a value orientation via inter-facing academic affairs and student affairs on two adjacent campuses.

William Craig: The people around campus.

Allan Axelrad: I personally like most the congenial atmosphere.

Roberta Gladowski: The warmth and sense of community.

Elaine Sipe: I like the friendliness and hospitality of the campus, as well as the friendly atmosphere.

What do you dislike most?

John Heiberger Jr: The things I dislike most is the lack of organization and clear lines of authority that are needed to act quickly and effectively. I find some people afraid to take full responsibility for a project so as to complete it in a quick and efficient way.

Dr. Anthony Camele: I dislike the absence of unanimity.

Sr. Christine: The students are sometimes unaware of the faculty's total dedication to and interest in them.

Sandra McAnich: I do not like the sense of confusion as to where SHC wants to go, wants to be.

Dr. Edward McGee: I've been disappointed by the failure of students to take advantage of the availability of the faculty.

William Craig: The thing I dislike is knowing what a hard time it is for all Catholic colleges, and especially Catholic women's colleges.

Allen Axelrad: I dislike student apathy.

Roberta Gladowski: The lack of serious intellectual commitment on the part of the students.

Elaine Sipe: The lack of spirit and enthusiasm for school functions.

Today's Woman: In a hurry to get into a world she can call her own. Sure of herself — sure of where she wants to go.

Today's Woman: is at Sacred Heart.

The GRADATIM staff wishes to express their thanks and appreciation to: Lex Youngman, for photography and advice; Reg Smith, Mike Almeda and other representatives of the American Yearbook Company; Mike Klinker for photography; Barbara Moran for encouragement when we needed it most; the faculty and administration of SHC for understanding our difficulties; and especially, to the Students of Sacred Heart College, to whom this book is fondly dedicated.
